

DANNY YAMASHIRO

Danny Yamashiro survived a deadly 400 foot fall from the historic Pali Ridge in Honolulu, Hawaii at age 18. The effects included traumatic brain injury (TBI), multiple tears in his scalp, skull fractures, smashed organs, a shattered ankle, and compound lacerations; all of which left him comatose.

His miraculous recovery required physical, occupational, and speech therapy along with extensive reconstructive surgery. He graduated from the prestigious Iolani School in Hawaii. During his first collegiate attempt at Biola University in La Mirada, California, he suffered an emotional breakdown and returned to Hawaii for recovery. This began three and a half years of dark depression causing social isolation and awkwardness as part of his healing.

Danny graduated from Biola with his bachelors in Biblical Studies and Theology and his masters (Talbot School of Theology) in Bible Exposition. He pursued his doctorate in Expository Preaching with specialized instruction from the late Dr. Stephen F. Olford in Memphis, Tennessee.
